Competition in New Zealand's electricity business. Clark W. Gellings. 2.3, 178–184

Effect of regulator on the planning and operation of power systems. B.J. Cory. 2.4, 279–282

Environmental policy and electricity spot markets. Gordon Edge. 2.4, 314–319

New local diesel power stations: an economic assessment. Richard J. Wills and Bryan G. Reuben. 2.2, 108–119

Organization of the electric power sector in Mexico. Raúl Monteforte. 2.2, 149–157

Policy alternatives for western and southern power systems in India. Jyoti Parikh and S.G. Deshmukh. 2.3, 240–247

Rural electrification: the institutional dimension. Gerald Foley. 2.4, 283–289

The process of integrating DSM and supply resources in electric utility planning. Lawrence J. Hill, Eric Hirst and Martin Schweitzer. 2.2, 100–107

The UK electric market – a French view. Glyn England. 2.1, 4–8

Powerless and thirsty? The outlook for energy and water in developing countries. J.T. Winpenny. 2.4, 290–295

Use of outage cost for electricity pricing in Chile. Sebastian Bernstein and Renato Agurto. 2.4, 299–302

Environment

Demand-side management and environmental externalities: ramifications on utility resource planning. Fereidoon P. Sioshansi. 2.4, 320–329

Environmental policy and electricity spot markets. Gordon Edge. 2.4, 314–319

Gas

A comparison of electricity and natural gas markets and regulation in the USA. Richard P. O'Neill, Charles S. Whitmore and Gary J. Mahrenholz. 2.3, 204–227

The RPI-X system of regulation in British Gas: a case study. Peter Spring. 2.4, 333–343

Regulation in the UK gas supply market. James McKinnon. 2.4, 276–278

Management

Contracting for non-utility generation: the experience of a US utility. Seth D. Hulkower. 2.1, 62–70

Demand-side management and environmental externalities: ramifications on utility resource planning. Fereidoon P. Sioshansi. 2.4, 320–329

Networks

Policy alternatives for western and southern power systems in India. Jyoti Parikh and S.G. Deshmukh. 2.3, 240–247

Rural electrification: the institutional dimension. Gerald Foley. 2.4, 283–289

Planning

An end-use electricity load simulation model: DELMOD. Robert Bartels, Denzil G. Fiebig, Michael Garben and Robert Lumsdaine. 2.1, 71–82

An integrated approach to electric power system planning and cost of service allocation. R. Billinton and K. Chu. 2.4, 303–308

Clearing the utility markets: editor's introduction. T.W. Berrie. 2.4, 266–269

Demand-side management and environmental externalities: ramifications on utility resource planning. Fereidoon P. Sioshansi. 2.4, 320–329

Effect of regulator on the planning and operation of power systems. B.J. Cory. 2.4, 279–282

Optimized evaluation of aging fossil-fueled power plants. Warren P. McNaughton and Barry Dooley. 2.2, 120–134

Powerless and thirsty? The outlook for energy and water in developing countries. J.T. Winpenny. 2.4, 290–295

Ramsey pricing: its uses and limits. William G. Shepherd. 2.4, 296–298

Rural electrification: the institutional dimension. Gerald Foley. 2.4, 283–289
